give students a chance to meet new friends with like interests. If you don't see what you want it's easy to start a new organization – learn photography with the Photo Club, join a running club, a chess club, the Gospel Choir, or perform in a play in the Philip Lynch Theatre.

encourages students to grow in their faith regardless of denomination or faith tradition. Numerous retreats and local and national service opportunities exist for you to serve others and practice your faith. MAK A DIFFERENCE in your community activities and agencies.

This on campus symposium is a rich opportunity for both students and faculty to present scholarly work to a student, faculty, and staff audience in celebration of the academic excellence that is central

They include the Student Recreation and Fitness Center, Neil Carey Arena, the Powerhouse Flex and Fitness Center, Lewis Stadium, and fields for softball, baseball, soccer, tennis and intramurals. The Student Recreation and Fitness Center provides many opportunities for your personal development, including cardiovascular and weight training machines, free weights, an 8-lane collegiate-size swimming pool, and an indoor track and fieldhouse.

program allows students to compete against other schools on a local and national level.

Club Sports are student-led organizations governed by the Student Recreation and Fitness Center. The clubs have coaches, are partially-funded by the University and represent the University in competition.

If you choose to live on campus, you will find there is much more than convenience to help you make your experience in the residence halls enjoyable and memorable.

In the place you will call “home,” you will discover opportunities for meeting other residents who have similar interests and with whom you will study, order late-night pizzas, attend social events, and engage in many other activities that are of interest to you.

Learn about the programs and services available to our residents and see for yourself the benefits of living in University housing.
